“Managing Implicit Bias in the Practice of Law”

Lawyers are just as susceptible to stereotypes and biases as anyone else, notwithstanding ethics rules that prohibit us from discriminating on the basis of age, race, creed, color, national origin, sex, disability, marital status or sexual orientation. And what about our unconscious biases - how do we become aware of them, and what can we do about them?

Presenter

David Hoffman is a lawyer, mediator, and arbitrator from Boston, and he teaches the course on Diversity and Dispute Resolution at Harvard Law School, where he is the John H. Watson, Jr. Lecturer on Law. His workshop will include experiential exercises and discussions designed to expand our awareness of implicit bias, and he will present the results of research on how we can all do a better job of managing such biases.
